

Looking at the contours of the ground it is suggested that these fields are the same? The angle of the church building (not the tower) in the film clip would suggest that the scene was shot left out of view in the modern picture.

In these two images woodlands appear in the back ground to the left of the settlement.

It is suggested that the field that the hay bale scene is filmed in is the other side of the church shown in this picture.

